LYNN UNIVERSITY

EDUCATING FUTURE WORLD LEADERS

Lynn University is committed to providing a global perspective in preparing the world's future leaders. Even as our world compresses due partially to rapidly expanding technologies and vast improvements in international travel and communication - the need for a global perspective in all facets of business and management is essential if today's university graduates are to successfully respond to the many challenges of our complex and constantly changing new world.

As an institution that has been committed to global education, Lynn University has established mutually beneficial relationships with institutions such as the Fuji Phoenix College in Japan, Trident College in Japan and École Condé in France. American College Dublin, Lynn's Ireland campus, lends another dimension to the international perspective so necessary for successful higher education endeavors in the coming new century.

Located on prestigious Merrion Square in Dublin, the American College Dublin offers the Bachelor of Arts in several concentrations. The Study Abroad Program allows students the unique opportunity to learn first hand about the culture of Ireland while earning college credits and the opportunity to visit exciting places in Great Britain and on the Continent.

Lynn University is especially appreciative of the GEO. S. DIVELY FOUNDATION for their sponsorship of the George S. Dively Visiting Professorship and the opportunity it affords to have Mr. Ranneberger as our Dively Visiting Professor.

PANEL DISCUSSION

FEATURING: MICHAEL E. RANNEBERGER
SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICER AND COORDINATOR FOR CUBAN AFFAIRS

MODERATOR: IRVING R. LEVINE
DEAN, COLLEGE OF
INTERNATIONAL STUDIES,
LYNN UNIVERSITY

OCTOBER 30, 1997

Mr. Ranneberger, an officer of the Senior Foreign Service, assumed his duties as Coordinator for Cuban Affairs at the end of July, 1995. In that capacity he works closely with Ambassador Stuart Eizenstat, Special Representative of the President and Secretary of State for the Promotion of Democracy in Cuba.

In August 1994, Mr. Ranneberger became Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy in Mogadishu, Somalia. When the Embassy was closed in September due to the hazardous security situation, he became Deputy Principal Officer of the reconstituted Somalia Liaison Office in Nairobi, Kenya. In October he was asked to go to Haiti to oversee the U.S. police assistance programs there and, later, to set up and run an inter-agency Task Force on Justice and Security-Related Issues.

From 1992 to 1994, Mr. Ranneberger served as Deputy Director for Central American Affairs. He served as Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy in Asuncion from 1989-1992. His tour as Deputy Chief of Mission at the U.S. Embassy in Maputo, Mozambique from 1986-1989 included eight months as Charge d'Affaires during a hiatus between Ambassadors.

Following tours as a junior officer and consular officer in Georgetown, Guyana and Lisbon, Portugal and after entering the Foreign Service in 1975, Mr. Ranneberger served as the desk officer for Angola during 1981-1984. In that capacity he worked as a member of Assistant Secretary Crocker's Southern Africa team negotiating independence for Namibia and the withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola.

After working as a Special Assistant to Under Secretary for Political Affairs Michael Armacost during 1984-1985, Mr. Ranneberger was awarded an International Affairs Fellowship at the Council on Foreign Relations in New York during 1985-86.

Mr. Ranneberger earned a B.A. from Towson State University in Baltimore and an M.A. in history from the University of Virginia. He resides with his wife and two children in Arlington, Virginia.

DAN QUAYLE
44TH VICE PRESIDENT

JANUARY 16, 1998

Elected Vice President of the United States at the age of 41, Dan Quayle was the first member of his generation to win national office. His service with President George Bush continued a remarkable record of achievement that began with his election to the U.S. Congress at age 29, and the U.S. Senate at age 33. During his years in public life, Vice President Quayle was a vigorous advocate for economic growth, a strong national defense, American leadership in the world, and the revitalization of non-governmental institutions — families, neighborhoods, churches, small businesses — that are the foundation of American civilization.

Mr. Quayle is widely considered to have been one of the most active vice presidents in history. He made official visits to 47 countries, was chairman of the President's Council on Competitiveness and the National Space Council, and served as President Bush's point man on Capitol Hill. As a leader in causes from legal system reform to deregulation to the renewal of basic American values, Vice President Quayle developed a large national following and became one of the most admired Americans of his time.

Dan Quayle is the author of Standing Firm, a vice-presidential memoir that became a nationwide bestseller, and The American Family: Discovering the Values that Make Us Strong. The former vice president is a distinguished visiting professor at Thunderbird, the American Graduate School of International Management. He also serves on a number of corporate boards, chairs several business ventures, and is chairman of Campaign America, a national political action committee.

Dan Quayle continues to be a forceful voice defending the values of faith, personal responsibility, entrepreneurship and limited government. He brings a unique perspective to bear on the issues of today, and the challenges of tomorrow.

SUSAN MOLINARI
HOST, CBS NEWS
SATURDAY MORNING

FEBRUARY 4, 1998

A member of Congress from New York, Ms. Molinari was catapulted into the national spotlight when she was selected as the keynote speaker at the 1996 Republican National Convention.

In September 1997, she began her tenure as host of CBS News Saturday Morning. The highly publicized show, intended to compete with the well rated Saturday Today on NBC, will combine news and feature stories. Representative Molinari, noted for her trademark vivaciousness, describes the new TV show as "Sixty Minutes meets Rosie O'Donnell."

Congresswoman Molinari was considered the highest ranking woman in the House and was described in the New Yorker as "No.5 in House Speaker Newt Gingrich's inner circle." One of Congress' most outspoken and visible forces, Molinari is also known as one of her party's most charismatic, buoyant and telegenic leaders.

Twice elected Republican Conference Vice-Chair, Representative Molinari served on the Budget Committee which, in the 104th Congress, produced Washington's first balanced budget in 26 years.

The Congresswoman is a leader in the fight for the rights of crime victims, especially women and children, and has worked hard to stem the tide of domestic violence in this country and in her home state of New York. In 1994, she was Chair of New York City's Commission on the Status of Women, and in Congress worked to pass sweeping judicial reforms to toughen laws dealing with repeat rapists and child molesters. Working with her colleagues, she was successful in her bid to dramatically increase funding for the Violence Against Women Act and has sought insurance reforms for victims of domestic violence.

In 1996, Representative Molinari was named "Woman of the Year" by Glamour magazine. She was also named one of the 40 most influential people under 40 by Time in 1994.

Ms. Molinari is married to Congressman Bill Paxon of Buffalo, NY and they have one daughter, Susan Ruby Paxon. Ms. Molinari's father is former Congressman Guy Molinari of Staten Island.
